WEATHER

WEATHER SYNOPSIS BY REGION:

NORTHERN CALIFORNIA AND CENTRAL COASTAL AREAS:

Eureka Weather:

A disturbance off the California coast will bring a chance of showers and thunderstorms to portions of interior northwest California through the week. There will be a slight chance that storms may impact coastal areas as well Tuesday evening through Thursday.

Medford Weather:

An upper level low remains off the northern and central California coast today and will gradually shift inland Wednesday and Thursday. Continued moisture and disturbances moving up from the south will bring scattered thunderstorms this afternoon and evening.

Reno Weather:

Low pressure near the California coast will slowly move onshore and keep the threat of thunderstorms through Friday. Locally heavy rainfall and wet ground conditions may produce flash flooding this afternoon and evening. A cooling trend is expected through Thursday as cloud cover increases. By the weekend, thunderstorm potential will gradually decrease.

San Francisco Weather:

Look for continued widespread night and morning low cloudiness along with some patchy fog and local coastal drizzle. An upper low off the coast will move inland late Wednesday. Associated upper level moisture may produce isolated showers and thunderstorms in the Wednesday evening through Thursday night time frame. Temperatures through the week will generally be near normal.

CENTRAL CALIFORNIA AND SOUTHERN SAN JOAQUIN VALLEY:

Sacramento Weather:

Cool week with daily afternoon and evening thunderstorms mainly over mountains. Greatest thunderstorm coverage appears to be this evening through Thursday evening as an eastern Pacific upper low moves across the Sacramento Valley, keeping a Delta Breeze.

Hanford Weather:

A cooling trend will take place across central California through the end of the work week. Sierra Nevada thunderstorms will be possible each afternoon and evening. A storm system will approach on Wednesday bringing the possibility of valley showers and thunderstorms Wednesday and Thursday.

WEATHER

WEATHER SYNOPSIS BY REGION:

SOUTHERN CALIFORNIA:

Los Angeles Weather:

A low pressure system currently off the west coast will slowly move inland through the week. This will keep afternoon temperatures a few degrees below normal and continue the typical night through morning low clouds and fog pattern west of the mountains. On Thursday and Friday, as the low moves inland, there will be the slight possibility of an isolated shower or thunderstorm over the mountains in the afternoon and evening hours.

Extreme Southwestern California including Orange, San Diego, Western Riverside and Southwestern San Bernardino Counties:

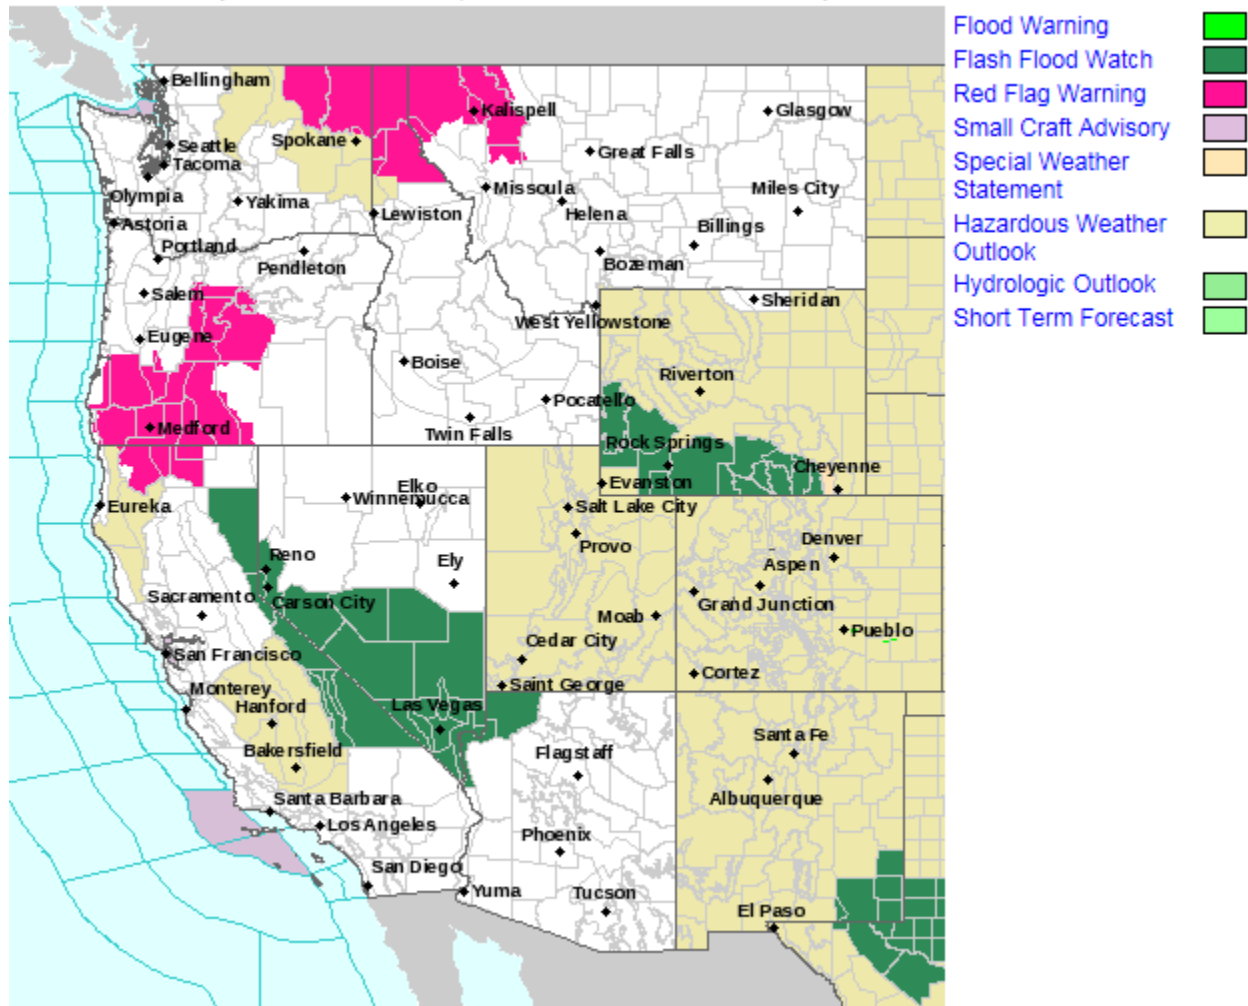

A slow moving low pressure system off the California coast will move inland through central and southern California Thursday bringing stronger onshore flow and dry southwest flow aloft with inland cooling and gusty west winds in the mountains and deserts at times. The marine layer will deepen with areas of night and morning low clouds with patchy fog and drizzle extending onto the lower mountain slopes. There will continue to be slow or limited clearing near some beaches each afternoon. The trough of low pressure will weaken for Friday through early next week with warming to near seasonal levels for early next week.

Southeast California Weather:

Today will be the last opportunity for thunderstorms on the lower elevations for the next several days as drier southwesterly flow develops. Despite the lack of storm activity, temperatures will remain slightly below normal. During this upcoming weekend, high pressure will begin to strengthen leading to warmer temperatures and possibly an increase in moisture.

FEATURED TRAINING:

- MGT-315 Enhanced Threat and Risk Assessment: 21-22 July, 2015

The Critical Asset Risk Management course helps participants answer those questions by teaching critical components of risk management. Through a combination of lecture, facilitated discussion, and group activities, participants will learn how threats, vulnerabilities, and consequences determine risk, and are given an opportunity to practice the fundamentals of conducting vulnerability assessments by conducting on-site assessments of select local facilities. Additionally they will identify potential mitigation measures associated with their findings and work together to develop and present a risk assessment report.

- MGT-414 Advanced Critical Infrastructure Protection: 24 July, 2015

In this course participants will enhance their skills to formulate considerations for the resiliency of jurisdictional assets leveraging cross-sector partnerships. These considerations will enhance the whole community's ability to manage the risk associated with critical infrastructure protection efforts. The course will implement the National Preparedness Goal by facilitating the development of Resiliency Action Plans, involving all jurisdictional critical infrastructure partners. Upon completion of this course, participants will be able to increase infrastructure owner/operator participation in jurisdictional planning, organizing, equipping, training, and exercising critical infrastructure protection efforts.
